Dear Friends of The Burns Way,

It is with deep disappointment that I share some difficult news today.

After nearly nine years of dedication, I have made the painful decision to cease all efforts related to The Burns Way NFP, effective immediately. Despite our passion and commitment, TryCycle can no longer sustain the financial burden, and we have exhausted all viable options to continue this noble initiative.

I want to extend my sincere gratitude to each of you for your unwavering support, guidance, and friendship throughout this journey. I will truly miss our conversations and collaborations.

To the Burns family, thank you for your trust and encouragement over the years. I deeply regret that we were unable to honour Earl in the way we had envisioned, but I hope you know how much his legacy inspired our work.

Ultimately, I made a promise to my father—to do everything I could to support all veterans in navigating the challenges that come with service. I step away today with no regrets, proud of what we've built and grateful for the incredible people I've met along the way.

As an eternal optimist, I'm excited to share that TryCycle will now focus its full energy on supporting Indigenous children and youth at risk—a cause that continues to align with our mission of meaningful impact.

Wishing you all health, happiness, and heartfelt thanks for everything you've done for and with The Burns Way.

Kindest regards,

John
